Please Note: I have transcribed this to the best of my ability. Sound bites of parties speaking simultaneously and those which were inaudible to me have been deleted from the transcript. If I guessed at a word, it was followed by ( )? A ____ (blank line) indicates I could not understand the word or phrase and three periods ... indicate an interruption in the dialogue of one party by another. Thank you for your understanding. Good evening, and Happy Shabat. I'm only going to speak on a quick story that Steve aka Bloodbath here in the chatroom brought up to me earlier this week; those of you in the chatroom probably read this. We had another show flagged by the that You Tube Thought Police. The first one was flagged because they said we violated their policy on vaccines. The fact of the matter is that we are exceedingly pro-vaccine. All we did was explain that the anti-vaxxers are making a foolish decision with their lives and with their loved ones. You have to be a moron to have flagged our vaccine show on your vaccine policy when we are anti-conspiracy and pro-vaccine, we are unrelenting in that regard, and have never changed in that regard.

This time our show was flagged for "election tampering". The election I assume we were "tampering" with is one we didn't vote in because we really don't care who wins; we are anti-political. Firstly, we don't take sides. Secondly, the election had taken place seven months previously. It's hard to tamper with an election that has already transpired by seven months. Thirdly, the person who I mentioned was in a story in the mainstream media, so I just cited the mainstream media. The person that I mentioned, to my knowledge, has never run for office, so how is that "election tampering"? We are dealing with completely irrational people in America's Thought Police.

We have this tendency to isolate Facebook because it's so liberal. The founder of Facebook founded his company by doing what will get you put into jail today and would be considered the ultimate no-no among liberals. He shamed women. The whole thing was 'would you do this woman; how ugly or doable is she?' It was a way of taking images of women that attended the university and treating them like a piece of meat. That's how Facebook was started, so it's easy to pick on them. But this incident was on You Tube, which I understand is owned by Google. Obviously, Larry Page, who lives just a stone's throw from me, has not left very smart people responsible for his content.

KIRK: If you go from verses 10 – 17 in the passage we're about to go through, you could have been a lot rougher; Yahowah is really mad.

YADA: We turned to this for two reasons. In a passage we covered several weeks ago, God said He is so pleased with what we have all been doing that when He meets with the Children of the Covenant for the first time, He is going to acknowledge all of our contributions. He's going to say 'I want to show My appreciation because many of you here have worked hard trying to share My message.' Our first response, of course, is going to be, 'Please don't do that.' We bring this up because it's so Yah. No dad is going to let one of his kids do something they think is important and had some value and not acknowledge it. To tell Him you can't do that would be selfish. We shared this because it spoke volumes about the nature of our Heavenly Father. He likes working through people and enjoys our company without getting frustrated because we aren't up to speed on certain things. Looking at the 20 books that we've completed thus far, and the website that is now displaying them, I think we do have done something that Yahowah is pleased with. The exceedingly effective message is strong and beautifully directed at His People. That was part of it.

The other part was that starting at this point in Yasha 'yah, God becomes more hostile to Judaism than anything we have experienced before. Yasha 'yah begins in Chapters 1-10 being entirely anti-Judaism. Chapter 11 is on the Choter, then God shows both positive and negative for a little while after that. By the time we get to where we are now in Yasha 'yah 57:10, and for the next ten statements, it is no holds barred. God is exceedingly disgusted by Rabbinic Judaism.

I have no problem having these translations challenged because, I think the more they are challenged, the more they will reinforce that God hates the religion of Judaism more than Christianity (which God calls 'The Plague of Death') and Islam (where Allah is Satan). Both religions have sought to malign and murder the Chosen People. The religion that has had the most negative effect on the Chosen People is Judaism, not Christianity or Islam. Judaism has virtually separated every Jew from Yahowah for the better part of 3,000 years. They were His witnesses; God spoke to the world in their language through their ancestors, and yet they rejected it. In addition to creating their own Talmud, and calling it the "Torah", they immediately removed God's name. God is livid. If you are a religious Jew, you need to know that God hates you. Most religious Jews probably already know that.

“With the variation and duration of your long rabbinical (ba rob) journey, your ways (derek 'ath) were wearisome (yaga' – required the expenditure of considerable effort), but you never admitted (lo' 'amar), ‘It is hopeless (yarash – it is futile).’

Reinvigorated (chayah), you expressed (matsa' – you extended) your influence (yad 'ath – your desire to reach out and attempts to gain control) such that you did not show weakness ('al ken lo' chalah – so that you did not appear weak or grieved).” (Yasha 'yah / Yahowah Delivers / Isaiah 57:10)

What part of that should be rendered a different way? While God is lambasting Judaism here, had it not been for Rabbinic Judaism, Paul would never have written a single book, given a single speech, or made any claim. Paul was such an effective deceiver because he had been schooled in Rabbinic Judaism and knew these passages well enough to misappropriate and misquote them. He knew Judaism well enough to attack it. Had the rabbis not taught him there would have been no Christianity. Without Paul there would have been no Christianity. Think about how different the world would have been if after Imperial Rome there wasn't the Roman Catholic Church. The oppression of the Chosen People by the Roman Catholic Church has been so gruesome, so unrelenting; it would never have occurred had it not been for Rabbinic Judaism.

There have been countless variations of Judaism as rabbis have added their personal pronouncements to the pile of manure which preceded them. The notion that the Talmud is an alternative “Torah” dating to the time of Moses is, well, to use the Irish name for such things, malarky. The preponderance of the Talmud was compiled in Babylon around 500 CE. The Rambam, Rabbi Moses ben Maimon, or Maimonides, as a converso Muslim, codified this Talmudic Law in his fourteen-volume Mishneh Torah in the 12th century.

The Zohar was written in a cryptic and obscure style of Aramaic used exclusively by rabbis in the Late Middle Ages. It first appeared in Spain, and not until the 13th century, when it was published by Rabbi Moses de Leon. To garner undeserved “credibility,” de Leon falsely credited the book to Rabbi Shimon bar Yochai – a disciple of Rabbi Akiba, who was the most nefarious of Jews for having brought the wrath of Rome upon Judea while promoting a false Messiah. Because of his promotion of a false Messiah, Yisra’el as Yahuwdah was renamed Philistia causing the problems we are witnessing today. The Jews were taken into slavery, the Temple was destroyed, the proceeds were used to build the Colosseum which was a theater for death, and we began the Diaspora. All that can be laid at the feet of man that Rabbinic Judaism credits as the father of their religion. It’s interesting I did not mention the Jerusalem Talmud because it isn’t well regarded, even among Rabbinic Jews, because it’s so poorly written and incomplete.

It’s important to note that after mentioning these infamous rabbis that Hasidic Judaism | Ultra-Orthodox Judaism is an even more modern phenomenon. It was conceived in Poland in the 1700s. It was promoted by Baal Shem Tov | Lord of the Good Name, also known as Rabbi Israel ben Eliezer. As a result, Hasidic Jews remain mired in the 18th century – unable to progress or extricate themselves from that time.

They began wearing the black mourning suits and weasel hats in the 1940s and 1950s. Hasidic Judaism isn’t old at all and so much of it evolves with whoever the next popular rabbi is. They make pilgrimages on their “holy” days to dead rabbis in places like the Ukraine. These are your assassins and the deadliest of all Jews. These are your assassins, Yisra’el – the five deadliest Jews. To this Most-Wanted list, I would add the wannabe rabbi, Sha’uwl | Paul, of New Testament infamy, and then Muhammad of Quranic pain, but those are stories for another time.

With life becoming more miserable for Jews, with surviving religious and political oppression and the rise of anti-Semitism becoming more debilitating, why is it that no one has stood up against the rabbis to announce the obvious: this is not working. With every word the rabbis wrote, with every deception that flowed from their poison pens, no one ever admitted, “This is futile.”

It has, in fact, been counterproductive as self-inflicted wounds, and God’s question still lingers. There isn’t a single Jew out there saying, ‘I’m sorry. It has been an abject failure. Why don’t we try something else, why not do the Hezekiah thing? The religious thing is obviously pissing God off.’

As Stockholm children, religious Jews have redoubled their efforts. They have not wearied of being played by their own. Jews rally around their rabbis, clinging to them for advice, worshiping them when they were actually the reason Jews were suffering – separated from their Land and their God.

Jewish religious leaders are going to spend eternity in She'owl because they have committed the unforgivable sin. They have led souls away from Yahowah and to gods bearing other titles and names. This prophetic proclamation from God's lips to rabbinic ears is among the saddest we have encountered. God says to the rabbis and to those who believed them...

“What did you find so troubling that you were you afraid of Me (wa 'eth my da'ag wa yare' – what was so worrisome and concerning that you did not respect Me [from 1QIsa with the conjunction and second you]) such that (ky – so that) you became deceptive in so many ways you have become proven liars, weaving your delusions on behalf of a false god (kazab – your opinions are wrong about God, what you write and say is counter to reality, you are worshiping something that is not real, only imagined (piel imperfect active – believers suffer the effect of these continual and deliberate lies))?

You have not thought about these things, nor have you been inclined to (wa lo' sym 'al leb 'ath zo'th – you have not set it upon your heart or placed it in your mind to [from 1QIsa where these things appear]) be associated with Me (wa 'eth 'any), and you have not mentioned Me because you do not remember who I am (lo' zakar – you do not proclaim the truth about Me or respond to Me in an appropriate manner, never recalling anything memorable about Me [from 1QIsa]).

Have I been negated because I have been silent (ha 376lo' 'any chashah – have I been eliminated and nullified for not responding to you)? Has it been so long (wa min 'owlam) you do not respect Me and are against Me (wa 'eth 'any lo' yare' – that antagonism toward Me has foreclosed any reverence for Me)?” (Yasha'yah / Yahowah Saves / Isaiah 57:11)

When I first translated this, my first reaction was they carried this around in their Tanakh. Yasha'yah is not obscure; he is the most prominent prophet, and my favorite. Yahowah says He has a special relationship with Moseh as a prophet because he did so much to get the people out of Mitsraym | The Crucibles of Religious and Political Oppression. I appreciate Yahowah's unique viewpoint on Moseh, but if you were to total all of Moshe's prophecies, they would be maybe ten percent of the prophecies of Yasha'yah. Moseh was an extraordinary man who did extraordinary things and was the ultimate prophet if you view prophecy as God does, which is prophecy is past and future. By telling the story of creation, the flood, the relationship with 'Abraham and how it developed, with Yitschaq and Ya'aqob, and then what caused the Children of Yisra'el to enter Egypt and tell the story of their release and deliverance, being withdrawn and presenting the Towrah to us, Moseh is extraordinary. I have no issue with that. Nonetheless, the Prophet's Prophet is Yasha'yah | Isaiah. We only have one complete prophetic scroll which happens to be the longest and most prolific of the prophets, Yasha'yah. There is a shrine to that scroll, and yet God says this as bluntly as He can about Judaism and they pay no attention. They go about their religion as if they are doing some service to God.

“What did you find so troubling that you were you afraid of Me (wa 'eth my da'ag wa yare' – what was so worrisome and concerning that you did not respect Me [from 1QIsa with the conjunction and second you]) such that (ky – so that) you became deceptive in so many ways you have become proven liars, weaving your delusions on behalf of a false god (kazab – your opinions are wrong about God, what you write and say is counter to reality, you are worshipping something that is not real, only imagined (piel imperfect active – believers suffer the effect of these continual and deliberate lies))?

You have not thought about these things, nor have you been inclined to (wa lo' sym 'al leb 'ath zo'th – you have not set it upon your heart or placed it in your mind to [from 1QIsa where these things appear]) be associated with Me (wa 'eth 'any), and you have not mentioned Me because you do not remember who I am (lo' zakar – you do not proclaim the truth about Me or respond to Me in an appropriate manner, never recalling anything memorable about Me [from 1QIsa]).

Have I been negated because I have been silent (ha 376lo' 'any chashah – have I been eliminated and nullified for not responding)? Has it been so long (wa min 'owlam) you do not respect Me and are against Me (wa 'eth 'any lo' yare' – that antagonism toward Me has foreclosed any reverence for Me)?" (Yasha'yah / Yahowah Saves / Isaiah 57:11)

The answer to the first question is rather simple. God had no use for rabbis; He only mentions them to condemn them, so the rabbis created a different god by a different designation in a different Torah which is their Talmud to replace Yahowah. They needed a god who would support their lust for power, so they made up their own.

There is no room for religion, no opportunity to get rich deceiving the people, in the Towrah. Therefore, rabbis substituted their Talmud.

I was translating a passage yesterday morning in relation to Sukah. Yasha'yah has a lot to say about Sukah. I went back to the first and second time that Sukah is mentioned in the Towrah. The first story is in conjunction with Ya'aqob and tells the entire story of Sukah. The second mention of Sukah is a matter of days before Yahowah reveals His Towrah to Moseh. God says there is only going to be one Towrah for everyone. That's all, just one. So, how in the hell did these buffoons claim that there was a second Towrah handed down orally to the elders of Yisra'el, and then magically passed onto them just shy of 2,000 years later?

If there's only one Towrah, as God says there's going to be one Towrah before there was any Towrah, how do you claim there are two unless the Towrah that was put in writing is false? If the written Towrah is false then your Torah, which you claim was delivered at the same time, via the same God to the same people is false. Game over.

How can these people that have a higher IQ than the average human be that stupid? God said in essence, 'You guys are so destructive, harmful, so abusive of our relationship, of Me and My name and plan My prophets, My Towrah and Covenant that if I blind you such that you don't understand any of it, at least you will not be condemning and disrupting the truth. Therefore, the truth will still be available. People will have to bypass you and they can find the truth. If I don't blind you and make you too dumb to understand, then you will so screw things up that no one will find it. I'm making you stupid. You're not going to get any of this because when you deal with it you misappropriate and twist everything, you eliminate My name, My Chag, My Mow'ed' ... the two most important Mow'ed by far.

Pesach without Matsah is counterproductive. God says that Chag Matsah is it. Every positive term that Yahowah can throw at something, He throws at Chag Matsah. The fact is that Pesach and Bikuwrym are incorporated into Chag Matsah. Why am I telling you this story? Because when religious Jews celebrate Passover, but they do not celebrate, observe or speak of Matsah. Matsah is relegated to nothing more than an ingredient during Pesach. That's how bad these idiots have become.

The next most important day to an ethnic Jew is Yowm Kipurym, the Day of Reconciliations. They turn this celebration of the family reunion of Yisra'el and Yahuwdah with Yahowah into a pain in the ass as a time to afflict and abuse themselves. The reunion with God is so abhorrent to rabbis that the day it occurs is the single most depraved, debilitating and disgusting day of the year. It's the day they abuse themselves because they know the reunion with Yahowah is lights out for Rabbinic Judaism, and they will take the entire ethnicity down with them. There is nothing more important in the Towrah, Prophets and Psalms than Yahowah's name, and Yahowah's name is what they have eliminated from their religion. You can't do worse than that. Yahowah also says not only is there just one Towrah we are told not to add to it or remove anything from it. The rabbis have a wall of "add to its".

You may think we are being ... we'll be called all sorts of names like anti-Semites for attacking Rabbinic Judaism, which by the way anti-Semite means "against the name". We love the name Yahowah. We love Yahuwdym and we are doing this because we love Yahuwdym. I only wish there were more of them. Rabbis have taken the Yahuwdym out of you. They have rendered all you Jews such that there isn't a Yahuwdym in the midst, not one, other than the ones who have come this way via these writings through the Covenant because to be a Yahuwdym is to be Beloved of Yah. You can't be Beloved of Yah if you won't even say His name. The fact is, as we said before, there is no room for getting rich and deceiving people in the Towrah, therefore rabbis have substituted everything in the creation of their Talmud.

Rabbis have been deceptive in so many ways that it is obvious to anyone who reads the Towrah and Prophets that Judaism is counter to reality – filled with the unsubstantiated opinions and wild imaginings of rabbis. To believe them is to be deluded. That is God's conclusion – you may form your own. Rendering what should have and would have been Yahuwdym Jews, void of the Name.

Claiming to speak for God, pretending that they are the only ones qualified to study the words of HaShem, in actuality the rabbis have not given Yahowah a second thought. They are not the least bit inclined to consider anything meaningful about Him. Rabbis say nothing of Yahowah because they do not know who He is.

If that sounds harsh to your ears, you can blame me if you like, but I am conveying Yahowah's sentiments. There is no mention of Yahowah anywhere in the vast array of rabbinic writings: not in the Talmud, not in the Mishneh Torah, nor in the Zohar, not even in the more recent drivel attributed to Baal Shem Tov. The rabbis have left a written legacy, one dating back 2,000 years, one which has been continually updated by their ilk, providing absolute proof that they "have not thought about," that they "have not been inclined to be associated with," and that they "have not so much as mentioned" Yahowah even once.

Should you disagree, prove God a liar. But good luck with that because this prophetic statement, like every other, was and remains accurate. There is no rabbi today, nor has there ever been one, who knows or speaks the truth about Yahowah.

Was there anything in Yasha'yah 57:11 that was insightful or perhaps missed or got wrong?

KIRK: The reason we love the Yasha'yah Scroll so much is that it's the prophecy for this time. He said, 'Don't worry. This is going to come to fruition at a time later. Just watch and wait. That's why we embrace it because it is for now. He wrote these words when there was no rabbi to holler at.

YADA: It's clear that Yasha'yah understood Yahowah's love for Dowd; he gets Dowd right. He understands the concept of Zarowa' and who they are. He clearly gets the fact that Dowd is the one who is returning. He is in love with Yahowah's name. He is fixated on the Covenant and Towrah. Yasha'yah knows. His intellect is superb, and he is a brilliant wordsmith. Yahowah allows His prophets to interject their terminology and insights into His testimony because He doesn't use us as robots; He picked us for a reason. This is an extraordinary individual in that during his lifetime, not a single person capitalized on his message. Here is the greatest of the prophets living in your hometown speaking your language, and not a single person capitalizes. But it's worse than that. Yasha'yah was able to go forward in time and for the next 2,000 years no one capitalized on it. Yahowah told Yasha'yah not to worry because He would show him how what he had written would transform Yah's People in the end and play the leading role in bringing them back home. And He did. That's why we find so much of what we're doing incorporated into the prophet's presentation because what we're doing is God's way of telling Yasha'yah what he did mattered.

So, you are right in that we do embrace and fixate on Yasha'yah. Every ... he's the key.

I'm going to tease on it, but I'm not going to do it. There is a prophecy towards the end of Yasha'yah where we are mentioned again in a way that is so riveting. Because it was brought to my attention, (I didn't find it) I shared it with a few people and said I can't deal with it at this point. I think that caused them to a bit miffed at me because I've always said I'll go where the words lead. This went to a place that was more than I can handle and am ready for. We'll get there one day. I can tell you that what we are doing is not only important to Yahowah, to the Yahuwdym and Yisra'elites that will ultimately capitalize upon Yowm Kipurym, it was important to Yasha'yah.

The answer to the second question God is posing is found in the first rabbis where they were able to neglect and negate, actually nullify, Yahowah among their brethren because God has remained silent for so long. It has been 2,400 years since the word of Yahowah was conveyed through a prophet, 2,700 years since Yasha'yah spoke to Yahowah's People, but 2,400 years since there was a prophet. I'm not sure if it's Mal'aky or Zakaryah. There is some evidence of either one, but I lean towards Mal'aky being the last of the Prophets. I love that God ends by saying that He's going to bring ELYah back. We think that Yasha'yah is giving them both barrels, Mal'aky is even harsher on them. But God says we're still going to get this resolved and I'm going to give you in the end Mal'aky ... ELYah.

I tried to figure out why ELYah? I think ELYah is the best because I love sarcasm and a guy that has the courage to give them both barrels. However, he wasn't much of a prophet because it wasn't his role. His job was to expose and condemn religion and politics, which he did better than anyone in history. He did it with such style, humor and biting words.

Rabbis were able to neglect and negate, actually nullify, Yahowah among their brethren because God has remained silent for so long. It has been 2,400 years since the word of Yahowah was conveyed through a prophet.

Somebody might say Yahowsha' was a prophet. Not really because there is very little to nothing that Yahowsha' said that wasn't already in the Towrah, Prophets and Psalms. We on this program cite the prophet Yasha'yah but that does not make us prophets. When Yahowsha' cited something that Yasha'yah said it did not make him a prophet. It made him someone like us. All Yahowah's prophets had something in common – they wrote. There is not a single word we have that was written by the hand of Yahowsha'.

Then they would say Yahowchanan and the book of Revelation. No because he does not write like a prophet, nothing in Revelation reads like any of the prophets, and it wasn't written in Hebrew. The parts of Revelation that are credible are taken from Zakaryah, Ezekiel, Daniel, and Yirma'yah. The prophets say, "Yahowah said." It's not much different than what we're doing here where we're telling the story through different prophets. So, you really have, therefore, 2,400 years of radio silence.

One of our challenges in presenting a book like Yasha'yah, Jacki and Molly are my quote smiths, is that sometimes it's hard to tell who is speaking because there is so much of Yahowah speaking in first person, (Yahowah even while speaking in first person uses His name in third person) and Hebrew does not have punctuation marks as English does.

The reason it's been 2,400 years since Yahowah communicated through a prophet is because there was no one willing to serve Yahowah in the role of a naby'. As a result of the rabbis, Jews were led so far away from Yahowah, there were none willing to listen to Him anymore. Without a naby', there would be no new revelations – just the fulfillment of that which had been written.

KIRK: Nobody would stand up against the rabbis until now. Nobody would dare.

YADA: Correct. The only thing you see in opposition to Rabbinic Judaism in Israel is that the non-Ultra-Orthodox, the non-Hasidic, will jab the Rabbinic Judaism arm and say, 'You are so disparaging of us that an Orthodox Jew will say that a Reformed Jew is not even a Jew.' They will speak of them as being dogs, snakes, etc., and are exceedingly derogatory. Everyone from the Reformed to the left of that, and who is secular, is upset because the Hasidic despise the nation of Israel, and are openly hostile to it. They live there, cash a check from the government so they can play religion all day, won't serve in the IDF, they don't pay taxes, spend all day as parasites, and yet they condemn the State. They hate the State. There are now people saying they don't care if they want to be religious, but they don't want to be made to pay them to be religious all day.

In Israel you can't get married or divorced outside of a rabbi. There is no secular marriage. Unless the rabbis say that your religion is Orthodox enough for them to view you as a Jew based on your religion, you cannot become a citizen of Israel. It's a real problem.

There was no one willing to serve Yahowah in the role of naby'. As a result of these rabbis, the Jews were led so far away from Yahowah, there were none willing to listen to Him.

As a result of Rabbinic Judaism, Jews have lost all contact with and all respect for Yahowah. It is only by walking away from Judaism that Jews might become Yahuwdym again – and once more embody what this name represents. Until Jews cease being Jews and become Yahuwdym they will not reengage in a relationship with Yahowah. That is not to disparage the ethnicity, it is to embrace it. Jews must become Yahuwdym / Beloved of Yah again for them to be reconciled with Yah.

Earlier in this discussion, Yahowah explained that He spoke through a nakar. Now you know why. He had to speak through a foreigner because that was all He had. There wasn't a Jew willing to listen.

These words may be disorienting for Jews. To know that God despises rabbis, and has called them liars, is a bitter pill to swallow. It means that 2,400 years of Jewish men, women, and children have been lost among their deceptions. The only thing worse would be continuing along their same deviant path away from the truth.

If it matters, I share your pain. I was once ensnared in the myths of Christianity – an ordained elder and evangelist. I believed Paul. I led Bible studies on the New Testament. The discovery that I had been played for a fool was traumatic. I was angry at the religious and disappointed in myself. I remain apologetic and remorseful that during my youth I was part of the problem. And while I am sorry, had I not been there I would not be here.

It might be reasonable to assume that because there was no one else willing to do what we have done – to go where Yah's words lead, to impugn their prior religion, their political views, their patriotism, to say things that the world does not want to hear, that the Thought Police will have a conniption fit over, and to do so 10 – 12 hours a day, six to seven days a week for twenty years, there weren't a lot of people signing up for that gig.

God didn't pick because of some qualification; we were chosen by default, but we still had to bring more to the party than just show up because it's hard to oppose something you know nothing about. Had I not been political, religious or patriotic I would not have known how to effectively rebuff those things. It's enough that God teaches us the truth and why He hates religion. He doesn't want to give a course on rhetoric or logic and doesn't want to teach about religion and politics so that we understand more effectively so we can condemn them more credibly. He wants to teach us the truth so that we can put ourselves into His message. God doesn't like working alone. He likes people who are going to interject themselves into the message, which is probably the thing that causes more people to leave our company than anything else, when I do that. If I didn't interject myself into His message we wouldn't be here. God isn't looking for a robot. I could just write what the translations say without commentary. If I did that then I'm not doing the job that He called me to do. The job is to awaken people to have them understand why God hates religion, and politics and why you can't be religious and political and be part of His Covenant. He wants us to explain what's wrong with these things so that we can be more effective witnesses.

KIRK: I'm probably like a lot of people. I have to confess I wasn't smart enough to find it. I knew something was wrong, I could tell you what was wrong, but I didn't know how to dig it out. That was something uniquely wonderful about your first Yada Yah book. But I will say I was smart enough to recognize it when I did see it, and most people I know, what we encountered. Now the difference is that because of your books, which help us learn how to check these things out, we know how to prove it.

God isn't celebrating what we're doing because one or two people "got it" but because we enable countless of people to get it. I understand that some people read these books with a dictionary nearby and there are those who want me to simplify things. Molly created YadaYah for Littles where His message is beautifully simplified, and we link to it now through our new website.

I'm so pleased with what David and Jackie have done with the website. It is so beautifully done. Thank you for making it available to the world.

God likes working through people and just like with Yasha'yah, Zakaryah, Mal'aky, even Habakkuk; God likes it when we interject. I understand there's a big difference between interjecting as a witness and as a prophet. I also understand that interjecting as a prophet requires a great deal more decorum and precision than interjecting as a witness. If I interject as a witness and I'm wrong, I have the opportunity to correct my mistake and it's not a death sentence. If I interject as a prophet, a mistake is a death sentence. If it was okay for a prophet (and they must be precise) I'm confident that Yahowah is good with us doing it.

God is nearly as opposed to conspiracy as He is to religion, so we'll spend a lot of time condemning conspiracies. One of the problems is that not only are the Jews in Yisra'el the principal people and nation blamed through conspiracies, even COVID-19 now is blamed on the Jews. It's so inappropriate to continually blame God's people, particularly when He says, 'If you're going to curse my people, I'm going to curse you.' It's a really dumb idea to be conspiratorial. My issue with conspiracy is that most are so stupid and easily disproven that even to be around such people is a giant credibility cesspool, so we speak against them.

When it comes to politics, while I don't vote and I'm not aligned with any party, and I'm not going to support any candidate, I do have a political viewpoint and have tried to have it as closely aligned to Yahowah as possible. And Yahowah does not like government. If there's a choice between less government or more government, I'm always going to side with less. Do away with the military, the welfare state, the controls over education, with life-long representation in government. Less government is better. It's not that less government is good government, it's just it's less bad than more government. We will speak of politics in that regard, and we'll do the proper thing which is to expose and condemn both political parties when they do stupid things.

So again, I understand your pain. I've been there, I've made these mistakes, it was disorientating. But I can tell you if you are a Jew listening to this and you want to become a Yahuwdaym; if you are disoriented because the rabbis have lied to you, there is no better feeling than finally pushing on past it. When you can finally reject your religion, understand how it was wrong across the board, when you come to know what God actually said and what He is offering, who He is, what He's like, and you get to know Him, it's like the weight of the world is removed from you and have been freed to soar through time, space and dimensions of joy and enlightenment, it's such an extraordinary experience. It is uplifting, empowering, liberating and enlightening.

Once I became aware of the truth, I realized that a horrible burden had been lifted from me, just as it will be for you. For the first time in my life I was receptive to Yahowah, and at long last, I could go to the place where Yahowah's words led. Joy replaced sorrow as the darkness was swallowed up by the light. The same opportunity awaits Jews en route to becoming Yahuwdaym.

Religion continues to be the greatest obstacle to knowing Yahowah. And since Yahowah wants His people to know Him, He is being forthright in exposing and condemning Judaism.

“I will correctly recount your work, accurately portraying your customs and practices (‘any nagad tsadaqah ‘ath wa ‘eth ma’aseh ‘ath – I will truthfully report your decisions, what you believe is right, and your sense of justice, even your righteousness, along with your deeds [from 1QIsa which corrects the MT's “their” to “your”]), but it will not be to your benefit (wa lo’ ya’al ‘ath – so that you are shown to be without merit or value).” (Yasha’yah / Yahowah Liberates / Isaiah 57:12)

KIRK: You know what that is, don't you? Right now by hearing that we are fulfilling a prophecy. Who else is doing this? This is real time now.

YADA: Yes, I guess we are. This is real time. I think the goal should be the opposite of what Yahowah just said about Rabbinic Judaism.

Yasha'yah is addressing those who claim that they are “tsadaqah – righteous and right, just and justified” among his people. Therefore, this remains a focused attack by God on rabbis and Judaism. To condemn them and repudiate their religion, Yahowah will tell the truth about them. In fact, that is what He is doing right now.

You are right. We are fulfilling a prophecy.

Nothing is more caustic to religious beliefs than Yahowah's testimony when it is accurately presented.

Every rabbi, pope, cardinal, and bishop, every imam, pastor, and priest, along with many politicians and teachers will be exposed in this way – hung by their own words and deeds.

We had as a dinner guest this week a young lady and her pre-teen daughter. The daughter was telling us about her female classmate who only wants to be referred to by masculine pronouns. The class has been told this is part of the new non-binary approach, and out of respect for this girl she should not be referred to by feminine pronouns, even though she is still a female, but must be referred to by masculine pronouns.

Transgender shortens one's life and makes their lives miserable. Unfortunately I know more transgenders than my share of families who are dealing with this and there are not enough psychiatrists on the planet to try and remedy this ... It shortens one's life and is not something we should respect; it is a very bad decision. We ought not be asked to lie. We should not ask to look at someone who is clearly a girl and say I understand you want to be called a boy. I don't think it's appropriate for a girl to enter a boy's bathroom or a boy to enter a girl's bathroom, or for a man to dress as a girl so he can prey on girls or guys by fooling them. These are deceitful things. I don't give a hoot if someone is lesbian, bisexual, or gay, and I don't think it matters to God. I think the two passages that have been attributed against homosexuality are poorly translated and have nothing to do with homosexuality. I don't think God cares; the only thing He doesn't like is lying. Don't deceive people about such things.

Whatever you do on your own is fine, but don't impose your decision, particularly if you are asking someone to lie, or if you are misleading someone, don't ask someone to endorse or respect those decisions. That's where we get to be wrong.

For those of you who have read them, you know that this is how Prophet of Doom and Questioning Paul were composed. I destroyed the credibility of Muhammad and Paul using their own words and deeds, nothing more. So, I understand God's technique here. The best way to prove Islam is wrong is to quote the Islamic scriptures. The best way to prove Paul was wrong is to quote the Christian New Testament and the books that he wrote.

God is saying, "I'm going to accurately reflect what you've said, you're just not going to like it very much." Muslims hate Prophet of Doom. It's a precisely accurate presentation of what Mohammad said and did. Questioning Paul is a comprehensive evaluation of what Paul said and did.

There may be a less damning fate awaiting those who have justified the unjustifiable without having become aware that their representations of God are inaccurate. At best, they will have their souls destroyed at the end of their counterproductive lives. But it should be noted that it is unlikely that a person would reach the level of rabbi, pastor, preacher, imam, mentor, spokesperson, politician, or professor and have done so much without realizing somewhere along the way that there were serious flaws and inconsistencies in the system they were advocating. That's really important.

There's a reason that the Progressives now, the most liberal of liberals, the socialist version on communists, have disbanded the use of logic or reason where they discredit evidence as not having any value anymore. There's a reason they go along with political correctness which is universally invalid. The reason is that the truth is exceedingly destructive to their belief system. If you are for big government, all you have to do is compare East and West Berlin, North and South Korea, Western Europe vs. Eastern Europe, life in Taiwan vs. life in China. It's not hard; it's exceedingly easy. If you want a religious state where your religion and god are preeminent, go live in an Islamic country and tell me how much you like it. The world as a whole, particularly the religious and progressives, have abandoned evidence and reason because they don't like the truth.

Interestingly, while the Chinese government is communist because of the dictatorial nature of centralized power, massive government is the most liberal use of government ultimately with a communist country. I was part of the first enterprise zones outside of Hong Kong. The Chinese decided that outside of Hong Kong, while China was still independent of China and still part of Belize, that they would accept an experiment in this one small area of an enterprise zone where Taiwanese Nationals and other businessmen could invest capital, own factories and make a profit, selling their goods without any communist control – it was the “Wild West” of free enterprise. That first enterprise zone, in which I had offices and factories, was so extraordinarily successful that the next year there were ten of them, and a year after that 100 of them. The following years there were 500, then thousands of them. With the exception of agricultural, the reason that China has become the fastest growing economy in the world, and will soon be the world's largest economy and the world's manufacturing engine, is because economically China runs on free enterprise. So, it has free enterprise as its economic system and then the draconian effects of centralized government and the dictatorship of communism over all that with total indoctrination and complete deprivation of freedom. The world is an interesting place, if you study it.

I spent a lot of time in the Soviet Union when it was the Soviet Union. I went all the way across the country from East to West and North to South and I got a good eye full as to how communism turns men and women into gods. Teachers are universally liberal because they buy into the rhetoric of communism which is that the most enlightened lead. That's never how it works. They convince the teachers and professors to support it by telling them that as the most enlightened they will rise to power, and of course, they've never had any power because the only thing they have done is teach. They buy into it thinking they will be revered and will be at the high end of society. The first thing a communist country does when the thugs come to power is to kill the intellectuals. You must be stupid as a teacher if you can't figure it out that if you get what you want you are dead. There really are no conservatives, but those that parade around such have to be some of the biggest nincompoops in the history of humankind.

For the souls who waited too long to choose Yahowah over the rabbis, who may have become too comfortable relying upon one another, Yahowah says:

“When you finally cry out for help (ba za'aq 'ath – when the time comes that you wail in agony and summon assistance, finally offering a proclamation to gather together (qal infinitive construct – as a verbal noun, those who cry out are actually defined by their response, irrespective of time)), let your assemblies and what you have accepted (qibuwts 'ath – your accumulation of things, your companions, your convocations, and that which you have received and assumed to be true; from qabal – to receive and accept assumptions which correspond to that which is actually the opposite) save you (natsal 'ath – deliver you to a more favorable circumstance, sparing you).

Every one of these meaningless and futile things, as if they were a fleeting breath (wa 'eth kol hem hebel – all of the useless content and idle statements as if vapor, arrogant and worthless opinions imbued with false hopes [from 1QIsa]), the Spirit (ruwach) will grasp hold of and carry away (nasa' laqach).

But (wa) the one who takes refuge in Me (ha chasah ba ‘any – the one who seeks My protection by trusting and relying upon Me to keep him or her safe, comforting them (qal participle active) [the one is from 1QIsa]) will inherit (nahal – will receive as an inheritance and thereby take possession of (qal imperfect – actually and without limitation)) the Land (‘erets) and become an heir to (wa yarash – receiving the inheritance of) My Set-Apart mountain (har qodesh ‘any).” (Yasha’yah / Yahowah Delivers / Isaiah 57:13)

If you are political and/or religious Jew and you are finding that the anti-Semitism is becoming too great, the Muslims coming into Israel to wipe you out to the last, the rocket attacks from the Hezbollah – when it becomes too much and you say, ‘Oh God Save us,’ God is going to say, ‘Talk to the politician or rabbi that you that you love. Let your shit save you. See how that works out for you. It’s all rubbish to me. You’ve paid me no attention and now in your darkest hour you’re still mentioning My name, and you reach out to Me like I’m supposed to save you? No. You banked on your beliefs. Let them save you.’

However, if you are willing to listen to Yahowah, if you’re willing to embrace what He said, if you’re willing to let go of all those who have held you down,

“But the one who takes refuge in Yahowah, not in the rabbis, the one who seeks Yahowah’s protection by trusting and relying upon Yahowah to keep him or her safe, they will inherit the Land and become an heir to My Set-Apart Mountain.” (Yasha’yah / Yahowah Delivers / Isaiah 57:13)

You want to be an heir to the Set-Apart Mountain because everything cool is going to take place on the ridgeline, the Tsyown/Zion of Mowryah. Yahowah is going to have His glorious home there, and we are going to help in the building of it. Most certainly Yisra’el and Yahuwdaym are. Yahowah says, ‘I’m going to give Dowd the opportunity to do what he wanted to do, and we’re all going to build it together.’ We’re going to get to this on Kipurym, and it is very profound.

Yahowah told us that the reason Dowd couldn’t build His house because he had blood on his hands. When Yahowah is talking through Zakaryah about the High Priest Yahowsha’ saying, ‘I understand the guy and his friends are scallywags, but I want him cleaned and dressed up because this is a very important role. For Kipurym to take place there is a series of sprinkling blood from the tips of your fingers onto that Mercy Seat, and somebody must be ready to do that for Me to honor My Towrah and fulfill Kipurym.’ We are told that’s why the story in Zakaryah 4 exists.

You may ask ‘Why Yahowsha’s name?’ Because Yahowsha was the High Priest when the house was built after the Babylonian captivity. That’s why his name is ... You might wonder why God cares about a High Priest. He doesn’t, even though he’s going to reestablish the Priesthood. He cares about fulfilling the Towrah’s explanation of what happens on Kipurym and Kipurym is explained very early on with Yahowah telling ‘Aharown. ‘Aharown participated in the golden calf – the bull- so for ‘Aharown to get clean he had to sacrifice a bull, just for him ‘Aharown is going to sprinkle some of the bull’s blood on the Mercy Seat with the tips of his fingers so that he can perform his role because he was overly fixated on religious bulls. They he had to sprinkle some of the blood from a scapegoat onto the Mercy Seat of the Covenant, which is called kaporeth which is plural for the word Kipurym which means “all things pertaining to reconciliations”. For Yahowah to fulfill Kipurym He needs someone acceptable to sprinkle the goat's blood on the Mercy Seat to reconcile Yahowah's people back to Him.

The man who is going to be doing it is the man with blood on his hands – Dowd. Right after he does that Dowd gets to lead in the construction of the Temple. It's so cool the way that story comes together and why it's told the way it is.

The prophecies of Zakaryah are illuminating. Of course, in the next chapter of Zakaryah is the story of the two witnesses. I was able to translate the symbolism in them. Until about a month ago I was just dumbfounded and was going to skip over them again because I didn't think anyone could figure them out. This time the pieces fell into place of why there were two witnesses and what they are and what's transpiring around them. One of the things the witnesses do is to make ready, level out the path and make straight the Path to Yahowah. That's what the prophecy is all about because Yahowah is about ready to return.

They also speak volumes about Dowd and the role he will play. Dowd will not only be the King he's going to be dressed in the priestly attire and is going to perform that function for us.

When Jews finally call out God is going to say, 'No. Turn to your Oral Towrah and your Babylonian Talmud. ... But those of you who choose to rely on Me, seek refuge in Me, take protection from Me, Yahowah, then you will inherit the Land and will become an heir to My Set-Apart Mountain – Mount Mowryah.'

I have imagined when the earthquake splits the east from the west and water wells up through the Mount of Olives flowing through the Kidron and Hebron valleys rushing down to both seas, filling the Dead Sea making it no longer dead while at the same time it creates this most spectacular water feature going down from the Mount of Olives. I think it's going to go right through the existing Temple Mount. There will be this beautiful river of water and light and a bridge of light between Yahowah and Dowd's houses and beautiful signs of Zion posted along the way. This mountain that is now surrounded by serene beauty, waterfalls and soaring trees, as Yahowah says, with all the brambles gone and all the religious rubbish vaporized, turned to goo, gone and swallowed up by the earth.

So now Yaruwshalaim has Dowd's and Yahowah's houses and these beautiful places to live and celebrate the relationship without any pollution of religion, politics, militarism or patriotism; it's going to be marvelous.

Yahowah says there is the opportunity for you to walk away from Rabbinic Judaism and inherit all that God has to offer.

I think this is wonderful material. I know the condemnation of religion and Judaism isn't fun for most people to hear and probably is impossible for most to talk about or even want to go to, but Yahowah took us here. We're telling you what Yahowah revealed, and we would be doing Him and His People a disservice if we didn't share it. Understand that it's the most compassionate thing we or Yahowah could do, because if you don't leave it the answer is 'I'm going to recite it all back to you and you aren't going to like it very much. If you call on Me while you're still mired in that rubbish, I'm going to tell you to find a page in your rubbish that maybe will save you.' So, the most compassionate thing we can do for Jews is to help them become Yahuwdym again and reintroduce them to Yahowah.

This is good news and a wonderfully happy story because all the religious Jews give up are religious Jews. ... enlightenment, freedom, great joy, you can actually love a woman and respect her without having to humiliate her. What a thought. You can work and be proud of your accomplishments. You can say your God's name and can recognize that His name is emblazoned into your name. You can pick up right where you left off. God is saying everyone is going to be a prophet. Well, of course, because you're going to have all these Yahuwdym there loving and knowing Yah and being available for Him to work through. I'm quite confident that had there been more Mosehs, Dowds, and Yasha'yahs, God would have worked through all of them. And thanks to Moseh, Dowd and Yasha'yah one day there will be. Thanks to Yahowsha' for playing the role of the Pesach 'Ayl.

Thank you all. Go to yadayah.com and check out the books that are available free on the site. Follow the link to the printed books on Amazon. I would encourage you to buy them and write your thoughts about them so that others might be encouraged to buy and read them. They are beautiful. I enjoy looking at them in my home; they are my motivation. It's one thing to be this devoted and invest this amount of time; it's another to enjoy the fruit of that effort. I look at the web site several times a day; it is motivation and a sense of satisfaction. We are not trying to pretend in any way that things wouldn't be better if we were retired and there were hundreds and thousands of Yahuwdym doing this. We would be the happiest people because then we could be off celebrating. Don't let the fact that we're doing this keep you from it. Join us, please. Even better, retire us. I would encourage you to jump in. It's the most rewarding job in the world and is way past time that Jews become Yahuwdym again and turn to Yahowah and the Towrah and become part of the Covenant. You will love it.

May Yah bless and Shabat Shalown. We look forward to being with you next week.
